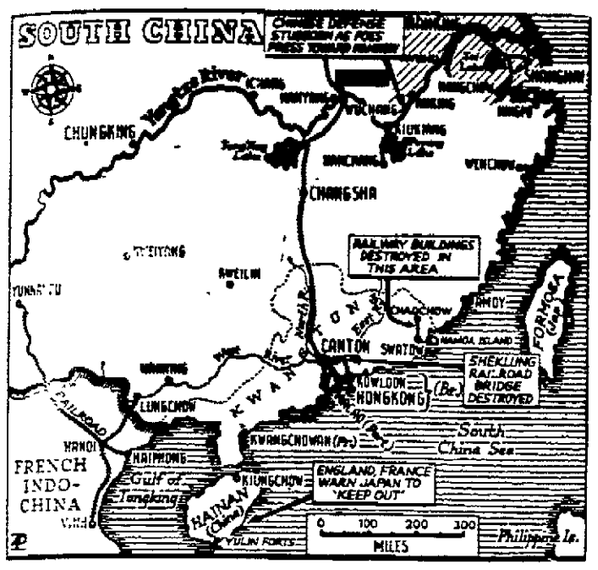
War Swings to South China



This map of the South China war zone locates scenes of various recent developments, including the Island of Hainan. England and France have warned Japan to stay off the island, and will act to support each other should "complications" arise, it was announced in the British House of Commons. Hainan commands approaches to French Indo-China from the east, and lies on the main route between Hongkong and Singapore, British far eastern strongholds.

German Military Aides Fail to Leave Hankow

"Dare-to-Die" Chinese Flier Plunges On Japanese Gunboat

Hankow, June 28 (AP)—The international train draped with American, British, French and German flags departed from Hankow this morning carrying 210 foreigners of seven nationalities, but 26 German advisers to the Chinese army were not aboard.

The Germans it was said, would leave on special coaches to be provided by Chinese authorities on July 5. They were unable to depart today, as scheduled, because of farewell functions planned in their honor.

The international train was routed toward Hongkong. Twenty-six additional foreigners, including eight Americans, were to board the train at Changsha, capitol of Hunan province 300 miles south of here. The train will arrive in Hongkong Thursday.

The remaining international community includes 150 Americans, more than 200 Britons, 50 French and a like number of Germans including the military advisers headed by General Baron Alexander von Falkenhausen.

The Berlin government has recalled the German ambassador, Oscar Trautmann, because of apparent displeasure over the reluctance of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek to part with his military experts.

Plunges Plane at Boat

Shanghai, June 28 (AP)—A "dare-to-die" Chinese flier was said today to have sunk a Japanese gunboat in the Yangtze river by deliberately plunging his burning, bomb-laden plane to the vessel's deck.

Chinese air force officers said the act occurred near Anking, 215 miles downriver from Hankow, China's provisional capital, Monday in air attacks that damaged at least three Japanese gunboats and destroyed six Japanese warplanes.

The Chinese pilot, they said, dived headlong to the gunboat's deck when Japanese anti-aircraft fire set his plane aflame, "exploding his bombs and breaking the back of the man-of-war."

A Chinese bomber was shot down west of Anking, Japanese reported. They said its crew escaped by parachute and was not located.

Japanese planes carried out new bombing raids on Nanchang, an important Chinese air base.

With the war bogged on all fronts, most Japanese operations were confined to aerial attacks over South China.

The island of Hainan off the coast of Kwantung province was bombed yesterday. No new sign of a major Japanese offensive in South China was apparent, however.

Injured In Auto Crash

Alois Ziegler of Highland and Martin Anderson of Astoria, L. I., were injured Saturday evening in an auto collision on Lake street, Newburgh, and both were removed to St. Luke's Hospital in that city. According to the police report Ziegler was driving his own car while Anderson was riding in a car driven by Ernest Johnson of Elmhurst, L. I.

Start Bombings

Madrid, June 28 (AP).—Five insurgent planes heavily bombed the Port and maritime quarter of Valencia today, but early reports said there were no casualties and no ships struck. Sirens gave warning in time for residents to take refuge.

Five French Fliers Die.

Reims, France, June 28 (AP).—Five French army fliers are burned to death today when their military plane crashed and caught fire about 200 yards from the airfield here.

Famous Show Picks Up and Goes Home

Strike Ends Ringling Season So Circus Returns to Florida Quarters Today

Scranton, Pa., June 28 (AP)—The Ringling Brothers', Barnum and Bailey Circus, stalled here by a strike rolled southward today its summer tour ended after nine weeks on the road.

Circus officials and performers—some nearly in tears—watched roustabouts working in a heavy rain run the last wagon aboard the circus trains for the journey to winter quarters at Sarasota, Florida.

"I'm heartbroken," said Fred Bradna, ringmaster, who has been with the circus for 38 years. "I can't realize the show is closing."

It was the first time in the 54-year history of the circus that a strike had cut short the 30-week season. The company's 1,600 employes struck last Wednesday after refusing to take a 25 per cent wage cut.

Rumors that the circus might be sold piecemeal were dispelled by President John Ringling North. "We have a $250,000 nut in the treasury and we'll be starting on the road again next season," he said.

Danes Would Give 'Babs' Separation

Ministry of Justice Answers Theoretical Question for Former Barbara Hutton

Copenhagen, June 28 (AP).—The Danish ministry of justice has informed Countess Barbara Hutton Haugwitz-Reventlow's lawyer that the Copenhagen city court will handle her suit for separation from Count Court Haugwitz-Reventlow when and if it is filed.

The ministry made the statement, it was disclosed today, to answer what was described as a purely theoretical question asked by the American-born heiress' lawyer to find out whether such a case could be handled by a Danish court and, if so, which one.

Legal authorities explained that the issue could concern only separation—and not divorce at this stage—under Danish law.

Divorce is possible in Denmark only after two and a half years of separation unless infidelity or mental cruelty is proved.

Dynamite Found On F.D.R.'s Route

Two Boxes Unearthed on West Shore R. R. Property Near Main Line Tracks

North Bergen, N. J., June 28 (AP).—Police Captain Louis Bachmann announced last night two boxes containing 40 sticks of dynamite had been unearthed near the main line tracks of the West Shore railroad 15 feet north of the cut through the Palisades that leads to the Weehawken terminus of the line.

The dynamite, he said, was "enough to cave in the entire cut."

Captain Bachmann said that the West Shore line was frequently used by President Roosevelt to and from his Hyde Park home.

New Yorker Held While Police Check Identify of Body

Northampton, Mass., June 28 (AP).—J. Paul Bathelt, 25, of New York, son of a Holyoke manufacturer, was arraigned in district court today on a charge of murder of an unidentified man whose cement-encased body was recovered last week from the Connecticut river.

He waived examination and was held without bail by Judge John L. Lyman for superior court the third Monday in October.

The charges were made in alternate counts—the murder of Charles Morris, 50, missing race track follower and the murder of a person unknown.

Police, while convinced the body was that of Morris have not definitely established identity. The teeth are being checked.

Further search of the river today resulted in the finding of a piece of bone, apparently the leg bone of the victim. It was turned over to Dr. Joseph P. Walker, state pathologist.

State Police Lieutenant Maurice P. Nelligan previously had said a man was being held on suspicion of a felony. He did not disclose the man in custody was Bathelt, however.

The New Yorker came here voluntarily two days ago and had been questioned by state and local authorities.

Nelligan returned yesterday with an automobile found in Bellows Falls, Vt., but he did not say what connection, if any, it had with the case. A search was made for blood stains or bullet holes.

Overnight Road Trips To End in State Schools

Albany, N. Y., June 28 (AP)—Overnight trips for New York State high school athletic teams were forbidden by the State Education Department today in an order limiting future journeys to 100 miles. A chief reason for the order, said Dr. Hiram A. Jones, director of the health and physical education division, was to halt expenditures of large sums of money for the benefit of the proportionately few who play on school teams.

Sees Women's Chance

Bolton Landing, N. Y., June 28 (AP)—The United States, in the opinion of Florence E. Allen, of Cleveland, O., first woman judge of a Federal Circuit Court of Appeals, "belongs to women as never before in history." Judge Allen accepted the annual national achievement award for women from the Chi Omega sorority at its national convention here last night. The presentation was made by Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Snell Announces Retirement

Attempts to Liberalize House Republican Leadership in 1939 Congress Foreseen by Political Groups, Who Recall Fish Move in 1936

Washington, June 28 (AP).—Attempts to liberalize the House Republican leadership in the 1939 Congress appeared likely today as a result of the retirement of Minority Leader Bertrand H. Snell.

Snell, outspoken critic of Roosevelt policies, announced he would not be a candidate for re-election. After 24 years in Congress, he said, he had decided to devote himself to his varied business interests in northern New York.

Politicians, speculating as to Snell's successor, recalled the efforts made in 1936 by Representative Fish (R-NY) to replace him with a leader favoring a "more progressive" program. The insurgent movement, however, was unsuccessful.

Among the few Congressmen still in Washington, the first name generally mentioned for Snell's post was that of Representative Joseph W. Martin of Massachusetts, assistant minority leader. He is 53; Snell is 67.

Friends of Martin asserted his political viewpoint was liberal enough to satisfy all factions of the party. They noted that while he opposed many Roosevelt measures, he supported much of the President's social legislation, including the wage-hour bill signed Saturday by the President.

BERTRAND H. SNELL

The executive committee of the National Republican organization was in session here yesterday about the time Snell's announcement was made. Chairman John Hamilton commented that Snell has been a source of "great strength to the party."

Scouts' Camp List Sets Record; Staff Departs on July 2

With the largest registration in its history the Ulster-Greene Council Boy Scout camp will get under way over the week-end when the camp staff and other workers will leave for camp.

During the week of July 2 to 9, the camp crew will be busy putting up the tents and making the camp ready for the big opening day on July 10.

The registration for camp this year has reached the highest in the camp history and the camp management said today they had every reason to believe that there would be additional campers before the season has closed.

All the camp tentage has been repaired during the winter and is excellent shape. Two new boats have been given to the camp and other equipment which will make for the convenience and happiness of all participating in the camp activities. Additions have been added to the waterfront equipment and Mr. Sylvester, who is in charge of this feature of the camp, promises one of the most interesting programs of swimming, life saving, etc., the camp has ever had.

Those attending camp this year will find two of the camp villages, the Pioneer and Ranger villages, in new locations which will be more convenient to the camp activities.

Several features are being planned for this summer. On Friday, July 15, will be the annual Mothers' Day and this is open to all Scout mothers whether her boy is in camp or not. The program begins in the early afternoon and continues through with dinner being served to mothers at 6 6 o'clock.

The annual Service Club Day for all men of the Service Clubs of the two counties has been set for Tuesday, July 19.

The annual Scouters Day, when all Scouters of the Council are invited to visit the camp, will take place on Wednesday, July 27.

Visitors' Day will come each Sunday from 2:30 p. m., until dark.

Courts of Honor will take place in camp on Friday evening, July 22, and August 5.

Carle Fails Today To Identify Man At Police Station

Although the city police and the sheriff's office worked all day on Monday there were no further developments in the case of the abduction of Jason Carle, Jr., and Miss Marjorie Smith.

Chief of Police J. Allan Wood said today that the authorities were following up every lead that developed, and the search for the abductor would be continued until he was apprehended.

Another suspect was viewed at police headquarters this morning by young Carle, who failed to identify him as the man who held him and the young woman up at gun point and forced them to enter Carle's auto and drive to Lake Katrine early Friday morning.

Children Not Nice, Teacher Divulges

New York, June 28 (AP).—Children are not "nice."—"They like to talk about dirty feet and other physiological subjects."

So the National Council of Teachers of English heard from Dorothy Howard, of East Orange, N. J., who cited today as examples, some of the rhymes and jingles children invent for their play.

The jingles, with their "not too refined subjects," have a counterpart, Miss Howard said, in adult risque stories and rhymes of the bar-room type.

K. H. S. Class Day: 1938 Style

Commencement farewells in the lighter vein were spoken at Class Day exercises in the high school auditorium Monday evening when the seniors, again in caps and gowns, passed on their advice, willed their possessions and recited a record of their history to the lower classmen.

With one of their members, Marion Steketee, at the piano, the graduates entered to the strains of a march and took their places both on the platform and in the audience section. The opening address, which was made to the faculty, was given by Robert Maresca. From the very beginning the quips and jibes were given and received in good nature and a spirit of frivolity prevailed.

The program continued with the class history in four parts given by Mary Adaline Summers. This was quite a clever little skit and afforded the audience much amusement. The historian stepped from a large book and in costume enacted various stages of the high school career. First she was a shy little freshman in a middy and skirt and with her hair in braids. The second scene showed the great transformation into the more blase sophomore. The junior year scene shifted to Mexico where the historian received letters from her numerous friends who kept in touch with all the important happenings of the junior class. The senior year found an epidemic of scarlet fever in town, so, enacting the role of Scarlett O'Summers, the final year of the class history was given with a southern drawl.

The program was not all frivolity, however. A serious side of the class manifested itself in the oration on "World Peace" given by John Leahy and which was as follows.

The following class day oration was given by Jack Leahy:

"World peace, the fervent hope of the civilized world. Will this, humanity's fondest dream, ever become a reality? And if so by what means. Man has tried fusion of nations, disarmament, and leagues for the purpose of promoting peace each of which has failed miserably. Past experience would seem to teach us that the possibility of all the nations of the world uniting under one head, with their traditional racial differences and inherent patriotic sentiments, is indeed remote. Therefore, universal fusion would seem to be quite out of the question. Disarmament is then left as the only feasible plan. According to the opinions of most of the

GOP Gains Support Of Some Democrats On Illegal Evidence

Supreme Court Justice Martin First to Bolt Democratic Ranks—Aid Would Insure Defeat of Ban

Albany, N. Y., June 28 (AP)—Republicans in the constitutional convention unexpectedly gained support from some Democrats today in their fight for rejection of a Democratic proposal to ban court use of illegally obtained evidence. Prolonged debate gave little hope of a showdown vote before tomorrow.

Supreme Court Justice Francis Martin, former Bronx county district attorney, was first to bolt the Democratic ranks and Republican leaders claimed that "at least four or five more Democrats will come over with us."

This would assure defeat of the Democratic-proposed evidence ban with votes to spare, inasmuch as Republican chieftains previously reported a sufficient welding of a split in party sentiment to bring about rejection with solely Republican votes.

'Protect the Criminal'

Justice Martin opposed his party's proposed amendment on the ground it would "protect the criminal."

"This whole issue simmers down to one of law and order against lawlessness," said the presiding justice of the appellate division, first departments. "This is a non-political question. It's a practical question against theory. To ban wire-tapping evidence would give protection to all the underworld."

Justice Martin's views were similar to those of Manhattan's Republican Prosecutor Thomas E. Dewey and the State District Attorneys' Association but differed sharply with that of former state Senator George R Fearon, who broke with Republican colleagues last night and appealed for approval of the Democratic proposal. A Republican measure ignores the evidence ban.

Max D. Steuer, New York city Democratic delegate and criminal lawyer, accused supporters of the Republican measure of "failing to tell the whole truth."

"Are you here to fool the people?" Steuer demanded. "If you really mean to tell the people what you're doing, I'm with you. But I demand as a condition that you tell them exactly what your proposal would write into the constitution."

Rarity of June Has New Significance At Weather Bureau

By The Associated Press.

Torrential downpours along the North Atlantic seaboard gave a new meaning today to the traditional rarity of June weather.

Starting Sunday and continuing almost without let-up, the deluge damaged crops, flooded fields and impeded traffic by land, sea and air.

In some sections, notably eastern Pennsylvania, the rainfall was the heaviest ever recorded for June.

Four square miles of land, mostly suburban property, were flooded by the collapse of a lake dam which drove 40 families from their homes at Burlington, N. J. A fourteen mile stretch of dual highway connecting New York and Philadelphia was shut off in New Jersey.

9 Bridges Out.

The Pennsylvania highway department reported nine bridges were washed out on main highways in the eastern part of the state, 12 highways were closed by high water, and many rural roads were impassable.

Phildelphia measured 4.70 inches of rain since Sunday, bringing the June total to 9.94 inches. Previous record for the month was 8.04 inches.

New York city has recorded a total of 7.22 inches thus far this month, of which 2.77 inches fell between Sunday and Tuesday morning. The June record, set in 1922, is 7.86 inches.

Bronx Wall Falls.

The downpour was blamed for the collapse of a 15 foot retaining wall in the Bronx. Ten automobiles parked beside the wall were buried under the mud and masonry.

Subnormal temperatures were reported all along the seaboard, from Pennsylvania to New England.

Boston building inspectors ordered four families out of a rain-weakened brick dwelling in the south end. The total rainfall in Massachusetts during the last 40 hours was 4.62 inches, bringing the month's total to 8.30 inches, a mark exceeded only by the 9.68 inch fall in June, 1922.

World War Date Finds Europe as Tense as in 1914

Duchess of Atholl in British House of Commons Today Gives What She Says Are Facts About Guns of Spanish Rebels "Threatening Gibraltar" Fortress

Chamberlain Faces Indignation

Mussolini Holds Conference With Two of His Foremost Fighting Leaders—Spanish Rebels Bomb Barcelona—Loyalists Report Gains

(By The Associated Press)

The 24th anniversary today of the shot that started the World War saw Europe filled with tension as a result of the Spanish civil conflict.

Archduke Franz Ferdinand of Austria-Hungary was assassinated June 28, 1914, at Sarajevo, then in Austria-Hungary, now in Yugoslavia. Out of that shot grew the World War.

Today in the British House of Commons the Duchess of Atholl gave what she said were details of Spanish insurgent guns "threatening Gibraltar" and said she would ask Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain tomorrow what he plans to do about them.

CHAMBERLAIN'S PROBLEM

Chamberlain already was faced by mounting indignation over continued bombings of British merchant ships in Spanish ports. Some quarters believed he would receive new demands to allow the ships to arm for defense.

Adding to British uneasiness was a report from Rome that Premier Mussolini had held a conference with two of his foremost fighting men—Marshal Pietro Badaglio, chief of general staff, and General Alberto Pariani, under secretary for war. The purpose was not disclosed.

Spanish insurgent air raiders bombed Barcelona this morning—one day after the Spanish government had accepted Great Britain's plan for a neutral commission to investigate bombings of Spanish cities. It was the first raid on Barcelona since June 20. There were no reports of victims or damage.

Reds' Slow Gains

Spanish government commanders reported that insurgent forces were being dislodged slowly from their positions on the Valencia highway southeast of Teruel.

Both sides conceded that the fate of Generalissimo Francisco Franco's campaign against Valencia hung on the battle along the Teruel-Sagunto road.

Advices from Valencia said the constant pounding of government counter-attacks had driven the insurgents from many heights in the Muela De Sarrion Range, about 22 miles southeast of Teruel and 45 miles northwest of Valencia.

On the coastal front, however, where another insurgent army is pushing south toward Valencia, a government counter-offensive came to an abrupt end and General Jose Miaja's militiamen were hard-pressed to stop a renewed insurgent drive.

Might Take Reprisals

At Madrid the newspaper Politica, organ of the Spanish government, expressed the possibility today the government still might take reprisals against the "real authors of attacks on government cities."

The editorial clearly indicated Italy and Germany were meant.

It suggested that Barcelona's acceptance of the newly created international neutral commission to investigate bombings of civilian populations did not necessarily solve the problem.

"The Spanish government," the newspaper said, "is not forgetful of the fact that in spite of all international commissions that may be appointed to come over to Spain to report illegal aerial activities, our rearguard cities may continue to suffer systematic bombings.

"If that is so, Republican planes will not be looking at rebel cities for retaliation. Like in our own cities there are innocent people, there are pacific Spaniards already quite miserable and disgusted by the invasion of our soil. That is not the sort of reprisal worthy of the republic."

Mrs. Heddi Heusser, 28-year-old red-headed divorcee, staged a "sitdown strike" for marriage in the Irvington home of Rollo K. Blanchard, wealthy water meter maker. GUNMAN CAUGHT, BROTHER KILLED

Blood streaming from his wounds, Orelle J. Easton, 25, Valley City, N. D., desperado, is shown under guard of Deputy Sheriff Jesse Burton at Kanakee, Ill., following his capture and the killing by officers of his brother, Clarence, 27. The Eastons are charged with shooting an Indiana state trooper, kidnaping four persons, stealing two cars and engaging in three gun battles with police during a mad 12-hour "crime tour."

Opening Art Exhibit Held at Woodstock

Woodstock, June 28—The first exhibition of painting and sculpture for the 1938 season of the Woodstock Artists Association opened on Saturday with an attendance of more than 200. The exhibition was introduced by a reception held in the gallery, with refreshments served in the garden at the rear of the gallery.

This occasion, in the gallery's 19th year, is its first under new organization. The show is the initial step in a policy designed to present a more inclusive representation of Woodstock art. It is the most important change in the Woodstock art colony for many years.

A positive move toward keeping up with the advancing times, it is expected to increase the already established position the Woodstock art colony holds in the cultural and artistic life of America.

From the small original Woodstock Artists Association, formed nearly 20 years ago with less than 10 members, it has grown to its present membership of approximately 75 artists.

In a truly democratic manner the membership elected, at a recent meeting, an executive board of 10 to conduct the affairs of the gallery for a year. This year's board is composed of Wendall Jones, Eugene Ludins, Henry Mattson, Herman More, Roland Mouuseau, Tomas Penning, Joseph Pollet, Eugene Spetcher, Carl Walters and Yasou Kuniyoshi. Besides this group there are Carl Eric Lindin, honorary president, Miss Alice Wardwell, honorary vice president, and Judson Smith, secretary-treasurer.

The executive board in turn have selected a chairman to manage each show with the aid of assistants he will select. For this first exhibition Jack Taylor was chairman of the jury and hanging committee. Saturday's opening presented more than 70 works by nearly 60 artists, most of them members of the organization. This increased number of works exhibited has been made possible by the use of two portable screens in the gallery, and the rear garden for sculpture.

The screens divide the gallery into three sections, of a size adaptable to the artistic display of many paintings. The rear garden is approached by a door from the print room which opens on to a large balcony porch from which steps lead to the terrace. Saturday's guests were entertained by music from the porch, provided by Judson Philips, Tode Brower, Joseph Pollet, Sandy Roome, and John Lynes.

Miss Alice Wardwell, Mrs. Eugene Ludins, Mrs. Austin Mecklem, Mrs. Sandford Roome, Mrs. Wendall Jones and Judson Philips were in charge of refreshments.

The complete catalogue of the exhibition, which will remain open through July 6, is as follows: Paintings: Beulah Bettersworth, "Flowers"; Arnold Blanch, "Corn Field"; Clarence Bolton, "Landscape"; Tode Brower, "Tobago Boatman"; Jo Cantine, "Twisted Path"; Lila Copeland, "The Railroad Bridge"; Florence Cramer, "Winter Landscape"; Peggy Dodds, "Accordion Boy"; Mary Ellen Barley, "County Fair"; Eleanor Edwards, "West Hurley"; Emmett Edwards, "Landscape"; Karl Fortress, "Crow Hangout"; George Franklin, "Conflex Through Cupendars"; Boyer Gonzales, Jr., "Virginia Town"; Paul Gray, "A Modern Parable", "Way of the Initiate"; Albert Heckman, "Tulips"; Norbert Heerman, "October Festival"; Earl Holmberg, "Portrait, Bowie, Arizona"; Millicent Holberg, "The Painter"; Izabella Howland, "Still Life With Pineapple"; Jane Jones, "Mary"; Wendall Jones, "Street in Tucson"; Hermonie Kleinert, "Summer Bouquet"; Margaret Lowengrund, "The Harvest"; Eugene Ludins, "Landscape"; Henry Mattson, "Chuckie Bateman, 1926"; Edith Macomb, "Landscape"; Eugenie McEvoy, "Flowers"; Soss Melik, "In Memory of Feodor Challapin"; John Nichols, "Interior"; Hermon Oxhandler, "Avis"; Emily Poirier, "Woodstock Landscape"; Joseph Pollet, "House and Garden"; Alison Ricky, "Landscape"; Louise Roome, "Fish"; Sandford Roome, "Dredge"; Helen Rous, "Landscape"; Jane Rogers, "Spring"; Ludwig Sander, "Composition"; Walter Sarff, "Sandra", "Cooper's Lake"; Gustave Schrader, "Doll House Cottage"; Madeline Shiff, "Monday Morning"; Helen Harvey Shotwell, "At the Dressing Table"; Adrian Siegel, "The New Bridge"; Ruth Singer, "Cork Float and Shells", "Rose Mary"; Judson Smith, "Roofs"; Natalie Arras Tepper, "Winter in Manhattan"; Dorothy Varian, "Still Life With Yellow Bowl"; Lisa Whitney, "The Old Home"; Florence de Vos Williams, "Cosmic Abstraction"; Reginald Wilson, "Landscape".

Lights of New York

By L. L. STEVENSON

Accommodation: When a Lackawanna train, which reaches Hoboken, N. J., in time for Manhattan workers to reach their desks by 9 a. m., comes in the two smokers are at the rear. As the train consists of nine cars, that means a long walk for those who take the ferry. Well, one morning a smoker-rider missed his boat and was late to work. So he undertook to have the smokers shifted to the head end. It seems that 50 signatures are necessary to obtain action by the railroad, and all he could get to his petition were 43. Nevertheless something was accomplished—the train now arrives at Hoboken two minutes earlier than it did in the past. Incidentally, it used to have ten cars, including three smokers. When the railroad decided to reduce the length, a non-smoker got in his work and one of the smokers vanished.

City Life: Broadway toughies reading racing forms while leaning against the new black and gold fence separating Broadway from Seventh avenue in Times square . . . Workmen on the new Sixth avenue subway sharing their lunch boxes with unemployed, who flock by hundreds to the employment agency billboards on that thoroughfare . . . The patent medicine racketeers in Union square who attract a crowd with "liberalism" speeches and then peddle hair restorers . . . The dramatic hopefuls who gather in the basement of a drugstore at Forty-fifth and Broadway and exchange tips on new plays to be produced etc . . . The "Dead End" youngsters at Fifty-third street and First avenue roasting potatoes over fires in old tin cans in the early evening.

Futile: A gentleman seemingly only slightly inebriated, wandered into a financial district restaurant patronized by those who can afford to pay substantial prices for substantial food. From table to table he weaved, playing gay airs on a harmonica. Instead of taking a collection, when he had competed his rounds, he went up to the bar and demanded a cup of coffee. It was given him without question and taking it to a table at which sat only one diner, he sat down. For a moment or so, he looked at the coffee. Then he pushed it over toward the other occupant.

"You take it," he said. "I can't drink it."

And picking up his harmonica, he tootled his way out into the street.

Escapes: Paul Whiteman was once trampled by a broncho he tried to bust. Though seriously injured, he later subdued the animal. Now he rides the Central park bridle paths each morning in a cowboy suit and hat . . . Morton Downey narrowly missed death in a theater in England when a heavy backdrop fell and came within a quarter of an inch of striking him . . . Jane Pickens was singing in a New England radio station which caught fire. She continued with her songs until her time was up and escaped just before the building collapsed . . . Benay Venuta during a tour of the South Seas, took her life in her hands by plunging into the shark infested sea to save a drowning child off the coast of Tahiti.

Diplomacy: A large and belligerent drunk with a mean gleam in his bloodshot eyes sat on the front seat of an Eighth avenue bus. As the vehicle sped along he drew out a big cigar and lighted it. The passengers became tense; the driver waited a minute or so before taking action.

"I'm sorry," he finally said. "But smoking is against the rules."

"Since you're so polite about it," replied the drunk, "I'll get off."

Which he did.

Observation: Only on Broadway have I ever seen a gorgeous orchid, symbol of affluence, displayed in a discarded bottle that once held a five-cent soft drink.

Mother-in-Law Haven Is Discovered by Traveler

Manila.—Back from a survey of travel conditions in the East Indies, American Expressman J. R. Lloyd reports that the natives of Papua, British New Guinea, have scotched the mother-in-law joke. Tribal custom there bars the mother from even speaking to her children's life partners. In some places the ban is so strict that she may not even mention their names in casual conversation.

Modern Science Dims Wonders of Magician

Berkeley, Calif.—Science can stage a vaudeville act that would make the old magician look tame indeed, according to Irwin A. Moon, Los Angeles scientist, who is demonstrating scientific wonders.

A few of the things which Moon does in his lecture "act" are discharging 1,000,000 volts of electricity from his own body; floating metal in space; turning rocks into gems under a 20,000 volt iron arc; recording the human voice inside a thread of steel, and projecting voices on light beams.

Small Doll's Hats Next..

New York, June 28 (AP).—Millinery stylists fresh from the Paris fashion show predicted today the next feminine vogue would be small doll's hats. The hats, they said, would perch on top of the head, with ribbons in back tying under the hair.

FIREMEN QUENCH UNDER-RIVER BLAZE

After a stubborn battle, New York city firemen succeeded in quenching a blaze in the north bore of the Manhattan-Queens $58,000,000 vehicular tunnel under the East River. The fire broke out in construction timbers near the air-lock where "sandhogs" work under pressure of 48 pounds to the square inch, 150 feet below the surface. Here firemen are shown laying a hose line into the chamber to flood the tunnel.

WHY CAN'T WE HAVE PLENTY?

It is with a shock that people read, in a WPA survey, that our present problems are likely to trouble us indefinitely, no matter what we do to alleviate them. After analyzing industrial unemployment, business trends, prices and wages, the conclusion is that no single program can eliminate the distress, but we shall need a permanent program of insurance, public work and public assistance.

"Under such a program," says the report, "unemployment insurance could care for persons who lose their jobs for relatively short periods of time. Persons unemployed for protracted periods would receive incomes through work programs. The most important fact is that unemployment relief can no longer be regarded as a temporary problem, to be treated on an emergency basis."

If this is true, why is it? Certainly there is no lack of natural resources in America, no lack of scientific knowledge of how to turn them to human use, no lack of business ability to direct the processes of production and distribution, no lack of efficient labor. The fault must lie in us, the people, ourselves. We must be hampered by some basic defects that keep us from functioning properly, from using our ability to master our natural and human resources and make life easier and better for all of us.

And these defects must be moral. Perhaps our troubles come simply from being too selfish, short-sighted and unsociable to cooperate with each other in producing and distributing goods and services as plentifully as we could. Maybe we're just not decent enough to make our system work.

BOGGED DOWN IN CHINA

The yellow flood pours on through the interior of China, spreading and deepening. And this is no transient flood, such as we have in the valleys of the Ohio or Mississippi, destined to run off in a week or two. China is not so well adapted to drainage as our continent, and the weather conditions are different. The rains are expected to continue all summer.

So the invading Japanese are stopped again, this time by nature—with some strategic help, no doubt, from the Chinese, in the way of cutting dikes where it will do them the most good by doing the invaders the most damage. It is a bitter sacrifice, involving the death of many thousand Chinese by drowning and starvation; but apparently the people, with their new patriotism, are ready to pay the price. There will be no dove flying over those turbid waters, as there was in the days of Noah. Instead, there are several score of new air bombers, modern and powerful, arrived from Russia, France and America, to harass the Japanese fleet which so far has dominated the air. And more will come.

The invaders are much annoyed by the flood. They vent their chagrin in accusations that the Chinese commanders are cruelly drowning hundreds of thousands of their own people, that General Chiang in letting loose the Yellow River has killed more Chinese than have been killed "accidentally" by the Japanese air bombers. Tokyo spokesmen say Japan is all the more determined now to crush Chiang "in order to save innocent Chinese." The Chinese, plodding through mud, smile grimly.

NAVAL PLAY

"Fleet Problem XX" is now occupying the ablest minds, both theoretical and practical, of the United States Navy. It is a project for bringing the fleet from the Pacific Ocean to the Atlantic for "war games" this year. No official announcement has been made, and the decision is up to the President as commander-in-chief, but it is expected that this spectacular feat will be undertaken. It is said to involve the movement of more than 150 ships, 3,600 officers and 55,000 men through the Panama Canal, and a series of maneuvers during the summer extending half way across the Atlantic and spreading from Canada to Brazil. There will be several [illegible] in a spectacular sonnel and attracting keen interest among other nations, especially in Europe.

One nation at least may be expected to find satisfaction in this move. Japan will be mighty glad to see the American fleet leave the Pacific, except for a few cruisers and minor craft left in China and Hawaii and on our western coast. On the other hand, such a warlike game so near Europe, and on so huge a scale, may have an impressive moral effect on European governments. The fleet mobilized will probably be as effective, even in its present form and size, as any that could be assembled today by any other power, without the billion-dollar additions lately authorized. Though not meant as a threat to any nation, but merely as practice work, the games will suggest to the world the greatness of our latent sea power.

BABIES GAINING

One pretty good way of measuring the progress of civilization is by the decline in the babies' death rate. By this standard we're dong pretty well. In New York city, which is not exactly typical but will serve as an illustration, thirty years ago one baby out of every eight died before it was one year old. Twenty years ago the rate had declined to one in ten. Six years ago it was only one in eighteen. Now it is a little less than that, in spite of depression and the unhealthful consequences.

In short, babies in America today have more than twice the chance of survival that they had a generation ago, and one-third better chance than they had at the beginning of the business depression. This progress comes through better medical knowledge, better parental care and better food, with special emphasis on milk.

Perhaps it's just as well for our self-esteem that we can't read today what future historians will write about this period.

OPERATION IN ACUTE APPENDICITIS

In cases of acute appendicitis it is generally agreed that if the patient undergoes operation during the first 36 hours, there should not be more than 1 in 100 die. After this time the death rate increases rapidly in proportion to the delay before operation. This does not mean that all those not operated upon will die, in fact most of them will recover although the after results may mean years of misery.

Some physicians keep an "observant" eye upon their acute appendix patients and feel that they would sooner take chances with the appendicitis than have the patient undergo the shock of operation.

However, in the great majority of cases, when the average, normal healthy individual is attacked by acute appendicitis, the records show very definitely that his chances for life grow less according to the length of the delay before operation.

Some interesting figures are furnished by Dr. L. Lazzarini, who records his observations of 100 cases of appendicitis operated on at the General Hospital, Milan. These cases were emergency cases, that is the condition of the patient demanded immediate operation. The record was made for the four years 1932 to 1935.

In 1932 there were 133 cases with 30 deaths (22.5 per cent); 1933, 174 cases with 25 deaths (14.3 per cent); 1934, 231 cases with 21 deaths (9 per cent); 1935, 262 cases with 19 deaths (7.25 per cent). In all the cases immediate operation was performed, in almost all the appendix showed areas of gangrene or perforation (had burst) and in most of the cases the patients had been ill several days and had been treated by purgatives and enemas.

Dr. Lazzarini emphasizes the importance of operating within 24 to 48 hours from the onset of the symptoms.

The above figures showing a great decrease in death rate within a period of four years means that patients and physicians realize more fully the necessity of early operation, and also that in cases of a persistent acute pain in the abdomen it is unsafe to use a purgative and that even an enema may be dangerous.

Chapter 46

'They've Got Him Cold'

"I S'POSE you could find someone willin' to sit, an' go through the entire population of this town an' the surroundin' countryside," Asey went on, "an' find out where every man, chick an' child was from around seven-fifteen—that's about when Carveth first lost track of Roddy. Thought he'd just gone out on the terrace. Anyway, from seven-fifteen, on for the next half or three-quarters of an hour. An' even if you narrowed it down to seven - thirty to eight, you'd still have a lot of ground to cover."

"Seven - thirty to eight," Mrs. Carr said reflectively. "Dear me, how hard it is to remember things, even six hours later. Let's see—I was up trying to amuse Aaron, and getting radio programs for him on that strange battery set. Tim went to the village for cigarettes — we were running short. Peg went with him to get her car—she left it up town last night, you know, and they did all sorts of things to it, in that riot. Poured beer into the crank case, or the gas tank, or something. Pam was making jelly—"

"What?"

"Yes, I thought it was a little too much, myself. But she said the currants wouldn't be any good tomorrow, and after all the work she went to in getting them, she wasn't going to have them go to waste—isn't New England amazing, Asey? It makes me feel I'm so plastic, and useless, and futile, and ineffective. I probably am. Anyway, Pam made jelly. I suppose it at least had the virtue of taking her mind off things—and particularly the ambergris. I do feel so badly about that!"

"So," Asey said, "do I. That's another item on my list. I got to find that."

"Find it? But my dear man, it was burned up—Pam said it was!"

"Wait," Asey said. "I think I hear the doc—it should be him. He was comin' right over from Roddy's."

Cummings came into the kitchen. "They didn't even think of Jennings, Asey," he said. 'They pulled a fast one. And the hell of it is, they've got him cold. On ice."

The Outraged Husband'

DR. CUMMINGS was bitterly disappointed with Asey's reactions to his bombshell of news.

The man didn't seem at all disconcerted. He didn't ask who, or how. He just nodded interestedly and pulled out that damned pipe.

"Well," the doctor said finally, "say something!"

"I'm thinkin'," Asey returned, "Lorne must of got back from Roddy's about seven-thirty-five, or seven-forty. Just in time for Jennings to spank him. Who saw him?"

"The Hepplewhites," Cummings sounded very annoyed. "They have the place next to Roddy's — you know? Yes, yes, probably you do know, probably you have dinner with them on alternate Tuesdays. Asey, how do you get to know things, anyway?"

"An' the Hepplewhites seen Lorne?"

"They did, and so did their aged grandmother. She watched him edge through the woods—"

"Didn't she," Asey interrupted, "say 'slink'?"

Cummings drew a long breath. "Sometimes, Asey, you infuriate me to the point of utter speechlessness. Anyway, the Hepplewhites reported when they heard about Roddy. Someone else saw his car parked by the lane."

"Lorne has an alibi for Marina's death," Asey said.

"Yes, but Hanson's figured it all out. Roddy killed Marina. Hanson's been working on that angle all along, it seems. After the news of Roddy leaked out, Nettie Hobbs crashed through and filled in the blank spaces."

Asey grinned. "After," he said, "the gold mine give out. Uh-huh. Wonder how she'll explain her speed in cashin' that check, an' the delay in tellin' about it. Prob'ly she'll bring in her pasture, an' how it dawned on her that Roddy didn't want to buy it, he was just payin' hush money. I see. So Roddy killed Marina, an' Lorne's the outraged husband."

"You haven't heard it all," Cummings said. "On Friday night, Marina went to a party. It began before that artist left, the one she was going to pose for when he came back. Marina'd got this posing job, and she was tickled to death, and did more than her share of drinking — I said she'd been drinking a lot, after I looked at her later that night. And Roddy breezed into this party a little after eight. Didn't stay more than half an hour, but while he was there, he and Marina had a fight. She wanted him to do something for her, and he said he wouldn't and she said he would, and that he'd better, or words to that effect—I'm just giving you the barest outline."

Sure Of Two Things

ASEY nodded. Translated, it meant that Marina had something on Roddy that would force him into staging the ambergris holdup on herself and Pam, whether he wanted to or not. He was convinced that a holdup had been Marina's plan.

"Marina left around nine-thirty," the doctor said, "and Hanson figures that Roddy came back over here to the garage, waited till she came, and got her. There you are. They say that Roddy was sore at her taking that posing job, and that he'd found out she was playing around with someone else—Hanson has it all worked out. Plenty of motive, plenty of opportunity—Roddy didn't like Pam, so he used her knife. It all figures out very nicely."

"What's Hanson's notion of the plane crash?"

"Just like yours. He's been over and talked with that pilot, too!"

"And what," Pam said, as she came into the kitchen, "has gone and happened now? Something has. I can tell by your faces."

She blinked when Mrs. Carr told her.

"Oh!" she said. "I—I can't believe it! Roddy—and Jack? Asey, is that so? Does—oh, of course! It means there's no hope left at all for the ambergris to turn up, now! Doesn't it?"

"It's a damned shame about that, Pam," Cummings said. "I'm awfully sorry about it. I'd sort of hoped that with the mural, and this place—what do the papers call it? The Incredible Background to these Startling Events—well, I'd hoped that Asey would delve into the incredible background, and pick up one clew from the mural, say, and one from this place—"

"You been readin' books," Asey said gloomily, "That's your trouble—"

"And then I thought," Cummings continued, "that he'd twitch the ambergris out of thin air for you. But—well, it can't be helped, I suppose. Coming home, Asey? I'll drive you over."

"Yup," Asey said. "I guess so."

Over in his own home, he sat down in the kitchen rocker and lighted his pipe.

All this ripping and tearing around he'd done since Friday, and where was he? The whole business had been just as headlong and breathless as a ride on a roller coaster—and where was he now? He was right smack back at the entrance again.

There were just two things of which he was certain: that Roddy had not killed Marina, and that Jack had not killed Roddy.

Asey thinks about clews, tomorrow.

"And what," Pam asked, "has gone and happened now?"

Man About Manhattan

By George Tucker

NEW YORK—Owen Davis is the most prolific playwright of the century. He's credited with about 300 plays. That's some seven-and-a-half million words.

But alongside Frank and Anne Hummert, Davis is a sluggard who just fritters away his time. The Hummerts head an advertising agency and in that capacity, conceive, write, direct and produce 50-odd radio programs. That means something like 75,000 words a week or the equal, in two years, of Davis' lifetime output.

THE Greenwich, Conn., estate of this couple is a pleasant enough place if it weren't that the Hummerts keep it humming so. It's a beehive. There's no croquet, badminton, or bridge going on either. It's work. There are half a dozen secretaries and a small battalion of assistant scriptists around.

The Hummerts use the Alexandre Dumas method. They hurry around pushing papers at their hired help, saying: "Develop this." Frank grabs a script from another, scans it, says: "How about doing it this way?" And jots down a whole new scene. Anne grabs a completed first draft and starts rewriting. That sort of thing goes on and on until you get exhausted just watching. But what "that sort of thing" puts in the savings account isn't chicken feed.

Frank is from New Orleans; Anne from Baltimore. Both have done their newspaper stint. . . . Anne on the Paris (France) Herald, where she interviewed and became friendly with such international dignitaries as Queen Mary, the former Prince of Wales, Lloyd George and Premier Daladier.

Did Frank meet some interesting people, too? He grins.

"I DID meet a few, but not exactly the drawing room type like Anne's friends. I rode with the Texas Rangers along the Mexican border for two years. There was, for instance, Bill McDonald, whom President Roosevelt called 'the bravest man in the world.'"

"I started reporting at 20. A friend who had a small advertising agency called me in to do some copy-writing and before you could say 'Blackett-Sample-Hummert,' I was in the business." (That's Frank's firm; he got in the plug before I could stop him.)

"How did I meet Anne? Well, I needed a secretary. Mr. Sample recommended a young newspaperwoman. I employed her. Her name was Anne Ashenhurst. I never could remember it, so I changed it to Hummert."

Frank smiles across at his charming wife. That may have been how it was, but I doubt it.

Washington Daybook

By PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON—This past Congress may go into history for the things it might have done and didn't instead of the things it did, and on that subject we can quote you something by Senator Ashurst of Arizona which is apropos.

At practically any time of the day or night Senator Ashurst can say something apropos of almost anything.

When we approached him with a suggestion that he outline some of the major things the Congress left undone he grinned wisely and said:

"The country is always grateful for the legislation Congress does not enact."

Inch Still 8-8ths

WELL, the country, on that basis, has much about which to be grateful. It did not pass a law to shorten the inch, although certain learned persons urged Congress to cut it down by about one ten-thousandth of the width of a pin.

Anti-lynching legislation went by the boards and so did the proposal to build a ship-canal across the Florida peninsula and to harness the Passamaquoddy tides. These things are not dead, of course. They only sleepeth, and will rise again, come next Congress.

Not passed was a bill proposing to take up to 95 per cent of the profits of war and another to conscript capital and industry in the same hour the government sends its men into the battlefield.

Eight trans-U. S. highways, four each way, will not be built as a result of legislation which did not pass this session. Postponed, too, as a result of legislation which did not pass, is construction of a highway from Seattle to Alaska.

Too Bad, Oklahoma

OKLAHOMA, for a time at least, must do without the $125,000,000 its officials asked the treasury to turn over to it as a result of inability to tax Indian lands. The legislation which did not pass explained this amount would have been collected in taxes in the years since opening of the territory to settlers, if it had been legal to tax tribal properties.

At this point it is only fair to explain on behalf of Senator Ashurst that he is not against all these things. It is just his belief that the country would rather dodge most legislation even though any individual citizen, when confronted with a particular piece, as likely as not would vote for it in the belief it was for the public weal.

We have not added up the amount of money the country will not have to raise as a result of the legislation which did not pass. But the amount of change the country will have to raise as a result of legislation the 75th Congress did pass is upwards of $20,000,000,000, more than two-thirds of which is yet to be gathered in. And that is right smart folding money.

Christopher's Chatter

"WOULDN'T you know," cawed Christopher Columbus Crow, as they were on their way home, "that Sweet Face would get out of any prank because he looks so good and innocent?

"If I had taken those pencils there would have been a big fuss. I would have been roundly scolded, I would have been punished. I would have been told how wicked I was, and that it was just like me."

"Well," bleated Sweet Face, "I meant to do the children a good turn."

"Ah, but it was a prank just the same. You knew the teacher would not have approved of what you did—and yet you did it—and she didn't scold you. She actually smiled when you were putting the pencils on the desks."

"I think Christopher is right," agreed Willy Nilly.

"Well, I'm thankful to you, Willy Nilly, for giving me some praise while we were there."

"You deserved it," Willy Nilly told his crow.

"You're not angry with me, are you?" Sweet Face asked Christopher.

"Oh no," cawed Christopher, "I'm not angry at all. I suppose it just happens with some creatures that they're born lucky, with sweet faces and ways that help them out of everything.

"But if I had done that—if I had done that," cawed Christopher. "Oh, I hate to think of what would have happened. There would have been no smiles and kind words for me. I certainly always get all the blame that's coming to me."

"Poor Christopher," said Willy Nilly.

Summer Standby

One of the summer's standbys—a simple all-around frock—is designed of sheer cross-striped navy blue rayon crepe. Because of its color and weave it can be worn comfortably in both warm and cool weather. Pleating appears both in the cape sleeves and in the skirt, while the vee neckline is piped in white pique.

PATTERN 9762

Want to look slimmer than ever this summer? Then hurry and run up a versatile shirtwaist dress—or two or three—from Pattern 9762! The long center panel does the trick—in partnership with the buttoned-over line at the bosom. This is a new Marian Martin creation—a delight to sew because the results are so splendid. The pleated skirt, the puff sleeves that somehow make waists seem smaller, the becoming V neckline (which may be decked with collar and buttons, or a ribbon bow), the adjustable self belt—they're lovely in a bright fabric that holds its color.

Pattern 9762 may be ordered only in women's sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48. Size 36 requires 3¾ yards 39 inch fabric, and 2⅜ yards lace edging.

HAVE GRAND FUN WITH A HOBBY; TAKE A TIP FROM A CELEBRITY!

Frances Langford Collects Dolls

You hear her lovely contralto on the air in "Hollywood Hotel," on the screen in sprightly musicals—yet Frances Langford still finds time to add to her large collection of dolls.

That gives you an idea of the fascination a hobby can have for you. Once you start, you don't stop. You never want to give up the fun, the friends, the little flair of distinction your hobby brings you.

But where in a bewildering world of hobbies is the hobby for you? Begin with yourself—your own preferences and tastes—for after all your hobby must be YOURS.

Do you like to COLLECT things? Andrew Mellon hadn't a bit more fun collecting paintings than you'll have collecting autographs, stamps, programs, china, coins, scrapbooks of odd stories.

Do you like to MAKE things? Choose among beadwork, soap sculpture, rug making, quilts photography, woodcarving, knitting.

Do you like to DO things? Amateur theatricals, puppet shows, gardening, club work, keeping pets—these are only a few of the hobbies for you "doers."

Do you have the itch to LEARN? Bird lore, languages astronomy — such hobbies are your dish.

Choose your hobby from these and the many other fascinating hobbies explained in our 40-page booklet, FUN WITH A HOBBY. Interesting hobbies of celebrities. Ideas for you that are inexpensive, simple, endlessly entertaining—and maybe a step up to money and fame!

Send 15c for our booklet, FUN WITH A HOBBY, to Kingston Daily Freeman, Home Institute, 109 West 19th Street, New York, N. Y. Write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, and the NAME of booklet.

K. H. S. Class Day: 1938 Style

world's greatest statesmen and diplomats, it is the only plan that has a chance to succeed. If this is true should not every individual of average intelligence know a little more about it?

"Disarmament has become, within the last few years, a household word. What do we mean by disarmament? Briefly, it is this—the reduction of a nation's military establishment to a minimum set by some authority. At once a host of objections present themselves. What should be the recognized universal military minimum? Should it affect every phase of military offense and defense? Who, or what should be authorized to set this minimum? These questions are not easily answered.

"Having in mind the military forces of the United States, you might merely say, in regard to a military minimum, 'Oh, an army and navy of peace-time standards.' However, some of our European muscle-men, Stalin, Hitler, Mussolini, and others seem to be faithful adherents to the old adage—'In time of peace, prepare for war.' The military organizations which they have built up and are maintaining are acknowledged far superior in every respect—equipment, training, and numbers, to those which took to the field in that never-to-be-forgotten year, 1914. These are peace-time armies. The world is at peace just now, except for the slaughter in Spain and the Far East; but these 'incidents' mean nothing. Why, the participants haven't even been around sufficiently to bother declaring war! God forbid their ever really declaring war! In my estimation, a military minimum should call for a military force in a country just capable of maintaining order within the country itself and of safeguarding whatever colonial or foreign interests the nation in question might have. This would eliminate the menacingly formidable war machines now prevalent in practically every so-called civilized country of the world, especially those under the control of a dictator.

"Another perplexing question is this—in whose hands should be placed the power of fixing a military minimum? Should some sort of a league of nations be authorized to set this minimum? I am afraid not since we have already witnessed the almost complete inpracticability of such a league. Should the authority be given one person? I think not, because the world lost its one inhabitant 1900 years ago who could be so completely non-partisan and unbiased as to do justice to such a position. I firmly believe that if the leaders within a country itself, allowed themselves to be guided by their own consciences in the business of establishing a military minimum, a satisfactory solution to this particular problem might be brought about.

"Will then, disarmament ever be brought about and if not what shall prevent its ultimate consummation? It is indeed ironical that the many basic falacies of man's own nature are the big obstacles in the path of his attaining that which he so greatly wants; for he does, earnestly desire peace. Human nature once again defeats its own needs. Man was, is, and will always be for countless ages past, and to come, an avaricious, selfish, suspicious animal. The only real differences between man and the denizens of the jungle, say eminent biologists, are in the construction of the hand, spiral column and mental development. The members of this exalted species, the human race, experience the same primitive emotions as do any other animal, but by the grace of God, the creature man was given a superior intellect with which to hold in check his animal-like tendencies. Ah, but does he use this intellect? No! Instead he surrenders himself to passionate outbursts of hate which in time invaribly lead to horrible, inhuman carnage camouflaged by the mild-sounding term war. Thus although solutions to the other problems might be found, I doubt very much if anyone or anything on earth, can alter or reconstruct human nature to such an extent as to make man aware of his faults and see the proverbial light.

"In conclusion, I might contend disarmament and world peace to be a dream, utterly fantastic. But why, because of the impracticability of the plan itself? No, rather, as I have tried to prove, of impractical man. I am not condemning man, for am I not one myself, at least in embryo, but I am condemning, yes, censuring man's attiture toward his fellow creatures. If I seem to be sounding a rather pessimistic, hopeless note it is only because I wish to bring to your attention what the real detriment to world peace is. If man, himself, can add, to the already numerous good qualities of his nature, just a little more tolerance and trust toward others of his own race, then and only then may man's most earnest, heartfelt entreaty, world peace be realized."

The class prophecy was given by Amy Munn who, dressed as she might appear in 54 years conjured up some memories of her high school graduation and told what had become of many of her classmates.

The class critic was Daniel Lammon who gave good natured teasing about the caps and gowns, and the lack of a class banner. The criticism was not all destructive though for four outstanding features of the class were given, namely, the first class to adopt the use of the cap and gown, the first class to adopt a standard crest for school jewelry, the two-night production of the senior play and the first class to have a beauty queen from its midst.

The rest of the numbers on the program followed the usual class day atmosphere, the class poem, by Elizabeth Heaps, the advice to the juniors given by John St. Leger and the junior response by William Cole and the final class legacy by Betty Gill.

Musical numbers were interspersed throughout the program and consisted of a piano duet by Blanche Navy and Shirley Berman and a violin solo by Harold Canfield accompanied by Elizabeth Heaps.

Graduation ceremonies will reach their peak this evening when formal commencement exercises will be held in the municipal auditorium at 8:15.

PREVIEWED

Today

Kingston: "One Wild Night," a newspaper-police story, featuring June Lang, Dick Baldwin and Lyle Talbot in a mystery which is solved finally by Cupid. Miss Lang is shown as a newspaper headline hunter, and every headline for her is a headache for her crime solving boy friend. The accompanying feature is "Bar 20 Justice," starring William Boyd and Russell Hayden in a story of murder on the range.

Broadway: "Vivacious Lady" with Ginger Rogers and James Stewart in a story about a vivacious night club singer and a serious young college professor in love. "March of Time" featuring racketeers against housewives. Preview of "Rascals," starring Jane Withers.

"Crashing Hollywood" is the co-feature, starring Lee Tracy and Joan Woodbury sharing equal interest in a novel crook theme. He's a scenario writer who does a story so minutely of a bank robbery that his lady-fair believes he's one of the crooks until the bank president absolves him, and the romance ends happily.

Tomorrow

TRADE MARK REG.

By Junius

Some friend of the column has mailed us a clipping from a South Carolina weekly which has inspired our curiosity as to how things really turned out. It reads:

"William H. Johnston went to the hospital today for a serious operation. He is survived by his widow and three children."

Clergyman (to the nine-year-old hopeful)—So you go to school do you, Junior?

Junior—Yes, sir!

Clergyman—Let me hear you spell "bread."

Clergyman — The dictionary spells it with an "a," Junior.

Junior—Yes, sir; but you didn't ask me how the dictionary spells it. You asked me how I spell it.

Chauncey Depew was the guest of honor at an important banquet. After dinner, the toastmaster, not knowing whether it was time to call on the guest speaker, leaned over to Depew and said: "Shall we let the people enjoy themselves a little longer, or had we better have your speech now?"

Wife—Does that novel you are reading end happily?

Husband—It doesn't say; it only says they were married.

"And 'tis remarkable that they talk most who have the least to say."

Minister on a westbound [illegible]

ter ignored him and presently he repeated in a louder voice: "I don't believe a word in that book!"

Losing patience, the minister turned, and looked at the interrupter, "My good man," he said, "would you mind going to hell quietly?"

Friend—But isn't your son sort of listless, Mr. Moneybags?

Mr. Moneybags—Heavens, no! He's got a list of blondes, a list of brunettes, and a list of redheads.

The Lord Himself does not judge a man until the end of his days. Why should you and I?

Read It Or Not.

Peculiar shapes of ears are inherited from one generation to another on the male side.

The Amateur Dramatic Society was giving a show, and a recently joined member was given a part with one sentence.

He was the headsman and, arrayed in black tights and mask, he strode onto the stage.

"My lord, my lord, I have beheaded the maid!" he cried.

"Oh, you have, have you!" cried Binks, whose part was that of a cruel king. "Well, then, let me tell you, you've spoiled the whole show. You've done it two acts too soon!"

He was doing his best to fit the key into the lock, singing a happy song meanwhile. After a time a head looked out of the window above.

Man (upstairs)—Go away, you fool. You're trying to get into the wrong house.

Man (below)—Fool yourself! You're looking out of the wrong [illegible]

Principal for New School Not Named

With the city's public schools holding their closing exercises this week for the summer vacation period there is considerable interest as to who will receive the appointment of principal of the new Myron J. Michael School when it is ready for occupancy.

The education board has not taken up the question officially as yet as the board has been busy with other school matters including the purchase of equipment for the new school, and a number of other problems that have arisen from time to time in connection with the school now under construction.

It is understood, however, that the one who is chosen as principal of the new school must meet the requirements of the state education department. It is said that the requirements are similar to the requirements expected of a principal of a high school.

When the new Myron J. Michael School is open all of the eighth grade teachers in the grade schools of the city will be transferred to the new school as well as the first year teachers in the high school.

It is not known at this time whether the new school will be ready on the opening day of the fall session following the vacation period, although efforts will be made to have it ready at that time.

It is expected that the education board during the summer months will take action on the selection of a principal for the new school.

Sims Held on Four Counts by Police

Lazarus Sims, 26, a negro of 49 Meadow street, was arrested Monday evening by Officer Fallon, who was on traffic duty at the Kingston High School during the Class Day exercises of the graduating class.

Sims was arrested on four charges: Driving with only one headlight on his Ford car; no taillight; no certificate of registration, and reckless driving.

Officer Fallon had halted an automobile to allow people to cross the street as Sims drove along Broadway. Sims pulled out of line and drove on the wrong side of the street to pass, and failed to stop when signalled by the officer.

This morning in police court Sims entered a plea of guilty to all four charges. Judge Cahill imposed a fine of $15 on the reckless driving charge and $2 each on the other three charges, a total of $21.

Sims did not own the Ford car he was driving at the time but said he had permission of the owner to use the car.

"FACTS... NOT CLAIMS!"

"LIKE everyone else, I'd heard a lot of claims about gas economy... but I never really got the facts until I stopped at a Hudson dealer's and took a ride in a Hudson 112 equipped with a gas-per-mile gauge. What did I find out? More miles to the gallon than any other lowest priced leader!"

Peter A. Black, Clinton Ave.; Van Kleeck and Frear, Ellenville, N. Y.; Ross Snyder, Saugerties, or any Hudson dealer, will be glad to show you the facts about Hudson 112 economy—and about its greater room, safer body and brakes. Come in, and get a "high dollar" deal on your trade-in, too!

HUDSON

Hollywood
Sights And Sounds

By Robbin Coons

HOLLYWOOD—Janet Gaynor's new leading man is 26, a former college instructor of English, a playwright, a stage director and an actor with a firm conviction that six months at a time in Hollywood is enough.

Richard Carlson signed a movie contract only when he got the kind he wanted—six months here, six months away from here.

Another thing he wanted in his contract was provision that he could write and direct as well as act. He got that too.

He is already working on his first screen writing assignment, is already making periodical trips to cutting rooms and laboratories.

An Athlete

He has been writing plays since high school days in Minneapolis. At the University of Minnesota he kept on acting and writing and took on directing. In high school he had played football and hockey in addition to numerous extra-curricular activities. In college he concentrated on golf in the sports line, sailed through his regular courses with time to spare for dramatics. In 1934 he had his M. A. degree, Phi Beta Kappa, $2500 in scholarship prizes, and a job as English instructor. He stuck it out three months.

He took his $2500 and started the Minneapolis Repertory company. In six months his $2500 was gone. Merle Potter, Minneapolis drama editor, advised New York or Hollywood. He came to Hollywood, with a letter to Gloria Stuart and her husband Arthur Sheekman, who had been a St. Paul drama critic. They sent him to the Pasadena Community playhouse, where he directed and acted.

When he hit New York by bus, he pounded the pavements only three weeks before he got a job that lasted 32 weeks. When he played with Ethel Barrymore in "The Ghost of Yankee Doodle" in New York the picture offers began. He got the one he wanted—from Selznick—after Playwright Sidney Howard read his play, "Western Waters," which had flopped on Broadway.

Doesn't Sneer

He took his test for "The Young in Heart" from scenes he had dramatized himself from I. A. R. Wylie's novel.

Although he's gone a long way in 26 years, and thinks Hollywood can make a mind insular, he hasn't a real sneer in his system for the place.

One Inch of Rain

An acre of ground contains 43,560 square feet. Consequently, a rainfall of one inch over one acre of ground would mean a total of 6,272,640 cubic inches of water, states a writer in the Indianapolis News. This is equivalent to 2,630 cubic feet. As a cubic foot of pure water weighs about 62.4 pounds, the exact amount varying with the density, it follows that the weight of a uniform coating of one inch of rain over one acre of surface would be 226,512 pounds, or 113¼ short tons. The weight of one United States gallon of pure water is 8.345 pounds. Consequently a rainfall of one inch over one acre of ground would mean 27,143 gallons of water. This is equivalent to 603 barrels of 45 gallons each. A rainfall of one inch on a roof of 3,000 square feet would mean 432,000 cubic inches or 250 cubic feet, available for the cistern. This is equal to 1,870 United States gallons, or 41.5 barrels of 45 gallons each. Ten inches of snowfall equals in water content one inch of rain.

Rheumatic Fever Attacks Young

Rheumatic fever is known to the public as inflammatory rheumatism, but its principal effects may not be on the joints, which become temporarily inflamed and painful, but on the heart, which is sometimes permanently weakened by inflammation. The disease occurs most frequently among children and adolescents. It is quite likely to strike an individual again and again. In its recurrences, it becomes more and more serious, and annually kills at least 40,000 persons in the United States. The average age of its victims at death is only thirty years.

Thousands of Canoes in Great Lake Erie Battle

Thousands and thousands of canoes were massed together for what might have been the first great battle on Lake Erie.

It was fought between the Eries of the region south of the lake and the eastern tribes off the coast of what is now Buffalo about 1625. The Eries and these tribes of eastern America despised each other.

As the Indians were without guns, a great deal of the fighting was carried on with the canoes side by side, where the redskins could slash each other with tomahawks. From stories handed down through the years to Indians of this region the battle was terrific, relates H. J. Carr in the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The lake must have been a dull, sickly red from the blood of the dead. Some canoes were upside down, others were shattered by tomahawk blows. Finally the Eries won.

For about the next quarter of a century, five eastern tribes, the Oneidas, Cayugas, Senecas, Onondagas and Mohawks prepared for another battle with the Eries. And then the five tribes returned and practically annihilated all the Erie warriors in one great battle.

"Little Church Around Corner"

On December 20, 1870, George Holland, comedian, died in New York, N. Y. His friend and brother actor, Joseph Jefferson, asked a minister to conduct the burial services. The pastor refused when he learned that the deceased was an actor. He suggested to Jefferson: "There is a little church around the corner that will, perhaps, permit the service." Jefferson replied: "God bless the little church around the corner." As a result of this incident the Church of Transfiguration, a little Protestant Episcopal church at No. 5, Twenty-ninth street, New York, became popularly known as "the little church around the corner." Dr. George Houghton, rector of the church, performed the burial services for George Holland. The church soon became the center of religious life among theatrical people and is often called the actors' church.

GRIN AND BEAR IT — By Lichty

"Men are so changeable. A month ago I was crazy about Bill—now I can't see him at all!"

Word Candlestick's Origin Traced to Rushes, Knots

The origin of the word candlestick is found in the long stick of wood to which was fastened a bundle of rushes or a pine knot. This was carried from place to place as needed or spiked to the wall. Later, relates Alice R. Rollins in the Los Angeles Times, when the art of candlemaking was developed, the candles were placed on candle beams—a rude chandelier of crossticks of wood or strips of metal with sockets or spikes, in sliding stands, in sconces, which were also called prongs or candlearms.

The candles were made of tallow, spermaceti and bayberry, the latter obtained from bayberries which grew plentifully in New England and was noted for its pure, spicy fragrance. In a letter written by Robert Beverly in 1705, he states that "nice people often put them out on purpose to have the incense of the expiring snuff."

All the lighting devices in the American colonies for the first 200 years were generally the work of individual workmen. They were made by blacksmiths, tinsmiths, pewterers, glass-blowers, carpenters or whatever the craftsman might be. Each of these created his own designs which were made for local distribution as necessity demanded and of which no two were exactly alike.

Candlesticks were made in wood, iron, brass, pewter and later silver and glass. As the Colonies became more prosperous and trade with the mother country increased many beautiful examples in silver, glass, pottery such as delft, and later in the Eighteenth century porcelains such as Chelsea were imported.

An Ancient Paris Restaurant

Boulanger's restaurant, which opened in Paris in 1765, was the first dining establishment to offer a choice of foods and liquors. Previously, says Collier's Weekly, the only public eating places were coffee houses and taverns, serving "regular" meals at a common table at a fixed time and price. Parisians so enjoyed eating when and what they liked that, by 1810, the city had more than 125 restaurants, one of which served 197 meat dishes.

Closis Play the Grunies Tonight In City League

Weather permitting, this evening's game in the City Baseball League at the Athletic Field, will bring together the Closi A. C. and the Grunenwalds.

Although Manager Steigerwald, of the Closis, didn't make any announcement about his pitcher, it is presumed that Bud Swarthout will start on the mound. Last week, Bud trimmed the Knights of Columbus, 8-1.

Manager Charlie Diers, of the Grunies, is keeping his bittery a secret, too, until game time.

The rest of the schedule for this week:

Wednesday—Kyanize vs. Hedricks.

Friday—Jones vs. Knights of Columbus.

Healing Properties of Hot Springs

Tradition says that the curative properties of the waters at Hot Springs, Ark., were known to the Indians long before the Spanish explorations; that they warred for them, finally making an agreement whereby all tribes had access to the springs. They were probably known to De Soto and were visited about 1800 by French hunters and by members of the Lewis and Clark expedition in 1828. In 1832 congress created a reservation to prevent exploitation of the waters for private gain, but litigation ensued which was not ended until a Supreme court decision in 1876.

Time Cycles Named for Animals

If you ask a Kirghiz his age he may reply, "I was born in the year of the dog, and have lived five rounds," for these nomad tribes of Mongol-Tartar descent know nothing of our western calendar. They have a system of their own, says the Rocky Mountain Herald, dividing time into "rounds," consisting of twelve of our years. Each round is subdivided into twelve parts named after an animal. Hence you will hear of "the year of the snake," "the year of the horse" or "the year of the bear."

Attractive Auto Race Bill July 3 At Woodstock

Woodstock, June 28.—Legion speedway officials, faced with the greatest lineup of midget auto drivers and the greatest number of inquiries since the inaugural events of May 29, are working night and day to perfect final plans for the gala program on Sunday, July 3, beginning at 11:30 a. m. with time trials.

Bill West, president of the quarter-mile oval, which in two events has attracted almost 12,000 racing fans, announced to a Freeman reporter today that in all 12 races will be on the program for a total of 150 laps of thrilling driving.

"Here is what the card calls for," West said. "There will, of course, be the time trials. Then, beginning at 2:30, we'll have four elimination heats of eight laps each; two match races, of five laps each, for special purses; two semi-final events of 10 laps apiece; two consolations of 10 laps each, and then the feature race of 25 laps."

System of Snappy Events

The program committee has worked out a system, also, it was explained, whereby events will be run off briskly and without delay.

"It is difficult," West said, "to make spectators understand that when we first began a certain amount of delay was necessary, because we didn't know our drivers and what their cars could do. Now we know. We have time trials previously recorded to fall back upon. Earlier we had to wait until a race was run to make up the list for the succeeding event."

Kingstonians Praise Races

West, Albert Cashdollar, Ken Wilson, Theron Lasher, John Peper and others in the organization who have been in Kingston a great deal on speedway business say business men in the county seat are high in their praise of midget racing as one of the greatest outdoor attractions ever instituted in this section.

"These men," Cashdollar said, "are keen about having Kingston drivers in the races and are doing all they can to encourage the building of midgets. They want to see us boom, because all the people we attract into the mountains from distant parts bring business."

Dick Doyle to Drive

Dick Doyle, of Kerhonkson, will drive the special entry in which George Schonger ran afoul on June 16, West said. The car has been repaired and tuned up and Doyle promises some snappy performance. Schonger, who has recovered quickly from his burns, expects to accompany Doyle to the races.

Season's Schedule

Eight events remain on the schedule, including the races on Sunday, July 3. The last date will be October 16. Intervening dates are July 17 and 31; August 14; September 4 and 18; October 2 and 16.

Lively Struggle For Young Golfers

Louisville, Ky., June 28 (AP)—Ranking stars of America's young golf set squared away today in a lively struggle for places in the championship division of the National Intercollegiate Tournament.

Eighteen holes of shotmaking over the intricate Louisville Country Club course separated the collegiate clubswingers from that select 32 group who will continue the quest for the championship.

As Edward J. Flowers, Michigan State senior, outscored the record field with a 72, one over par, 37 other delegates posted cards of 76 and under.

Baltimore — Paulie Walker, 154½, Trenton, N. J., outpointed Jimmy Jones, 158½, Baltimore (10); Frankie Lift, 140¾, Baltimore, outpointed Young Raspi, 145¾, Baltimore (8).

GOODMAN TO WED SCHOOL SWEETHEART

Johnny Goodman, national amateur golf champion, and his schoolday sweetheart, Miss Josephine Kersigo, smilingly announced at Omaha, Neb., they'll be wed there June 29.

GENE VENZKE TAKES A BRIDE

Gene Venzke, former University of Pennsylvania and Olympic track star, and his bride, the former Margaret Mary Eisenhower of Reading, Pa., are shown in their honeymoon apartment at Los Angeles. The bride's 22; Gene 29.

The Biggest Golf Purse at 'Plains

New York, June 28 (AP).—The longest American medal play golf tournament and one for the biggest purse will be played at the Fenway Golf Club, White Plains, N. Y., September 22 to 25, it was announced last night by Fred Corcoran, chairman of the Professional Golfers' Association Tournament Bureau.

A purse totalling $12,500 has been posted for the 108-hole tournament to be staged by the Westchester P. G. A. The tourney will consist of 18 holes on each of the first two days and 36 holes each on the last two.

Coen, Paul Runyan, John Inglis, Alec Watson, Herman Barron and Ed Salters formed the committee which drew up the plans for the event. The Westchester pros themselves subscribed $4,000.

Austin Will End His Tennis Career

Wimbledon, Eng., June 28 (AP).—Henry Wilfred (Bunny) Austin, for ten years Britain's model of classical tennis, may end his distinguished career on the Center Court tomorrow.

When this Wimbledon tourney is done, Bunny has indicated he will have no more of it. And this Wimbledon may be gone for Bunny after tomorrow's semi-final against Henner Henkel of Germany.

Austin is favored to beat Henkel. Bunny is seeded second in this tournament and the German fourth.

In any case it's a case of "lose today or lose to Don Budge Friday" and Bunny certainly will have the support of the crowd in his final stand.

West Coast Track Stars Victorious

Evanston, Ill., June 28 (AP)—Track and field stars of the Pacific Coast Conference, with Southern California's great team holding a large share of the honors, boasted a second straight triumph today in their intersectional series with representatives of the Western Conference.

The west coast team swept to a 101 to 35 victory last night.

Although the Big Ten boys were routed, Charles (Chuck) Fenske of Wisconsin could look back on the meet with satisfaction. In his final appearance as a collegian, the long striding badger ace won the half mile and mile titles.

Riggs Continues On Tennis Quest

Chicago, June 28 (AP).—Bobby Riggs, the nation's No. 2 ranking tennis player, continued his bid for a straight National Clay Courts championship today against Bryan (Bitsy) Grant, who already has won the meet three times.

In the other semi-finals match today, Gardner Mulloy of Miami, Fla., took on Joe Hunt of Los Angeles, finalist with Riggs last year.

Rain Threatens The Boston Race

Boston, June 28 (AP).—New England's unpredictable weather today threatened the racing duel for which the nation's fans have long waited—Seabiscuit vs. War Admiral, in tomorrow's $50,000 Massachusetts handicap at Suffolk Downs.

Hours of continuous, driving rain had turned the track into a mass of mud and water—and more rain was predicted for today.

Soaring at Elmira.

Elmra, N. Y., June 28 (AP).—Encouraged by predictions of favorable weather, a field of 35 pilots prepared to take their sailplanes aloft today in quest of honors at the national soaring meet. For the past three days rains and unfavorable weather have kept almost all the pilots grounded.

Sorenson, Sempervino, Perfetti, Raigins and N. Y. Stars Here Friday

MAYBE THIS IS NO JOKE

Fun-loving Max Baer (left), former champ who didn't do so well in his last match with Joe Louis, was in top wise-cracking form as he signed with Promoter Mike Jacobs (right) to meet Louis in September.

Carl Sorenson, intercollegiate boxing star, who has more personal friends in Kingston than any of the upstate leather pushers who campaign in the auditorium ring, will be back Friday after a long absence due to activities at Syracuse University.

"I feel great," wrote Sorenson today, accepting a bout with Howie Means, New York star, who fights on the team of amateurs coached by Ben Jeby, former middleweight champion of the world. They top the card with their five rounder.

"Regards to Kingston fight fans," concluded Sorenson in his letter, after promising to put up the fight of his career against the New Yorker. In Means he'll face one of the smartest little lightweights around the metropolitan district.

Whenever Sorenson boxes at the auditorium, fight fans crowd around him, because his personality matches his ring ability. Carl is a typical Jimmy Walker when it comes to handshaking and getting him to the dressing room is a real problem if he happens to run into a group of fans on the way.

Other stars from the Adirondack district of the A. A. U. on the card for Friday are Vince Sempervino the former U. S. Army champ who shellacked Joe Triola two weeks ago, and Dom Perfetti, the Amsterdam bantamweight who holds the national Diamond Belt title.

Sempervino is matcher with Herb Solomon, one of Ben Jeby's slugging welterweights from New York, and Perfetti is paired with Harry Gins, another star from the stable of the former world's champ.

Vince Angelo, Jeby's lightweight sensation, will battle it out with Charlie Raigins, the Saugerties Bomber, who has not boxed in two weeks, and should be ready to give a good account of himself.

In the three rounders, a trio of local scrappers will be seen as follows:

Jess Caprotti, Kingston, vs. Carlo Litz, Albany.

Major Leagues Draw Larger Gates Due to Surges of Teams

By SID FEDER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Major league magnates are rubbing their hands in glee over the whacky way the current pennant races are unfolding.

The totally unexpected surges of the Cleveland Indians and Cincinnati Reds in their respective leagues, together with the none-too-sure picture presented by both defending pennant-holders, has the turnstiles clicking at a tune indicating a possible all-time attendance high this season.

On the basis of a semi-official Associated Press survey today, the whole set-up promises a good chance of eclipsing the record "gate" of 10,186,000 fans who made a banner year of 1930. Only the Phillies, St. Louis Cardinals and Chicago White Sox look like they may not duplicate or better their 1937 figures.

Out in Cleveland yesterday, some 10,000 turned out to see Bobby Feller hand it to Lefty Grove and the Boston Red Sox, in one of the two games on the big league program. Young Bobby treated the folks to a seven-hit flinging job and fanned ten, while his mates landed on "Ole Mose" for 15 hits and a 7-3 victory.

In the only other game, the White Sox took a 9-1 decision over the St. Louis Brownies in the "battle for the cellar."

The Cleveland victory boosted the Tribe's American League lead to four full games over the Yankees, and dropped the Red Sox to a game and a half back of the New Yorkers.

Pittsburgh, June 28 (AP).—Wily Bill McKechnie, manager of Cincinnati's raging Reds, called today on baseball's public hero No. 1—Johnny (Two No-hit) Vander Meer—to break the long jinx of the Pittsburgh Pirates over the Reds at Forbes Field.

The Reds have lost the last 21 games they played here.

And now the two teams, both riding victory waves, meet for a three-game series.

Navy Shatters Record to Win Poughkeepsie Regatta

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., June 28 (AP)—A fighting Navy crew that rose to amazing emotional heights when its coach was hurt, has brought national rowing supremacy back to the East after a lapse of six long years.

The Middies, no better than third choice when the starting gun sounded, swept down the Hudson in record-shattering time to win yesterday's intercollegiate regatta by a half-length over California.

Knowing their injured coach, Charles S. (Buck) Walsh, was following their progress by radio from a nearby hospital cot, the emotional Tars bent their oars down the four miles in 18 minutes and 19 seconds, seldom relinquishing the lead as they eclipsed the course record of 18:33 3-5 set last year by the Washington Huskies.

The vaunted Washington crew, meeting its first defeat in 13 starts since Don Hume became its stroke oar in 1936, finished more than a length back of second-place California.

California made a bruising fight of it over the final mile and was timed in 18.20 1-5. Washington, third in 18:25 2-5, and Columbia, fourth in 18:27, also were well under the previous record.

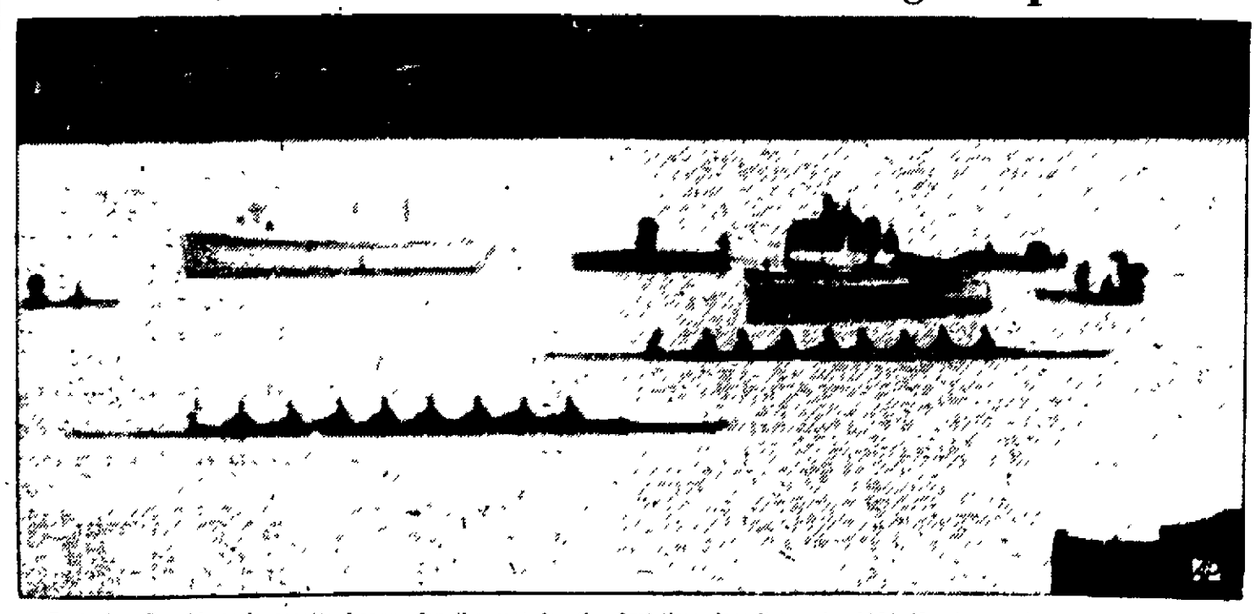
Wisconsin, after setting a burning pace for the first mile, wound up fifth in 18:34. Cornell was sixth in 18.38 4-5 and Syracuse a lonesome last at 18.40 1-5.

Washington won the junior varsity race and California won the freshman event.

Candidly Cold.

Salt Lake City, June 28 (AP).—The candid camera craze put Jack Bartlett, 46, in a hospital. Motorcycle Patrolman E. N. Olsson said he agreed to let Bartlett take "head-on" picture of him yesterday. The photographer got excited as Olsson's motorcycle approached. He attempted to dodge. So did Olsson. Bartlett suffered a brain concussion. P. S.—He got the picture.

Navy Noses Out California At Poughkeepsie



Capturing Poughkeepsie regatta honors for the east for the first time since it won in 1931, Navy's crew is shown as it pulled past the finish mark a half length ahead of California. The tars set a new course record of 18 minutes, 19 seconds, despite a rain-drenched Hudson river. Navy's victory came as a smashing upset, with Washington, defending champion, and California rated in advance as the No. 1 contenders.

Navy Did It For Walsh— Coolerators Build Up

By Joe Kelly

Regards to Kingston fight fans. . . . This is what Carl Sorenson wrote in accepting his Friday match with Howie Means at the municipal auditorium. . . . Vince Sempervino is on the bill, also Dom Perfetti, the national Diamond Belt champ, and Charlie Honeyboy Raigins, the Saugerties Bomber. . . . Opposition will be furnished by Ben Jeby's New York amateurs. . . . You know Ben Jeby, the former middleweight champ. . . . He'll make a personal appearance with the team. . . . Ed Shultis, sponsor of the Coolerators, wants to see his softballers go places and has been strengthening his lineup . . . He has signed Frankie Roe, former Applecknocker outfield star. . . . Bill Bush, Don Britt and Don Weeks, Church League luminaries, the latter two being with Clinton Avenue M. E. league leaders. . . . And from the Knitting Mills he has Babe Coughlin, Don Murphy and Johnny Swint. . . . Looks like the Icehouse Gang will be the dark horse team of the second half.

The automobile racing program hereabouts has two big attractions for July. . . . On Sunday, the 3rd, the midgets roar around Legion Speedway in Woodstock. . . . Monday, the 4th, Afton track offers a bill featuring some of the outstanding standard cars. . . . Lee Wallard, sensational young driver who has scored triumphs in a row, will try for one more at Afton. . . . This morning's weather looked threatening, and City Baseball League fans were glum. . . . The schedule calls for Closis vs Grunenwalds this evening, weather permitting.

Gus Schatzel, the local oarsman, was in the Columbia varsity boatload yesterday at Poughkeepsie instead of the junior varsity shell. . . . He and his crew rowed a fine race, although the Lions came in 4th. . . . Navy came in first, propelled by a strong emotional feeling for Coach Buck Walsh. . . . He listened from a hospital cot. . . . His boys called on him Sunday and vowed they'd win for him. . . . "Maybe I ought to get myself hurt more often," chortled the Navy mentor who fell at a meeting of the rowing coaches last Saturday. . . . That last 300 yard sprint between Navy and California was some test.

Eddie Brietz of the Associated Press says. British papers state the Louis-Schmeling fight films will not be shown in Germany. . . . Add strange sights: Brooklyn fans pulling for Bill Terry in the all-star game at Cincinnati next week. . . . Broadway is betting 2 to 1 on the Americans. . . . Well, our Navy showed 'em at Poughkeepsie! . . . If Schmeling wants to come back, he'll have to dispose of Tommy Farr first. . . . "Ja wohl," adds Mike Jacobs.

A lot of people can't understand why the American League managers picked Lou Gehrig over Hal Trosky (who is hitting just about 30 points more than the Iron Horse) for the all star team. . . . The Giants have voted Larry French of the Cubs the fastest-working pitcher in the National League . . . Carl Hubbell, who has just turned in his 200th victory for the Giants, is quoted as saying: "Well, boys, the first 199 were the easiest."

Messrs. Al Weill and Eddie Mead, their respective managers, may not know it, but Armstrong and Ambers are going to stage their lightweight title scrap in the Garden Bowl. . . . Both managers have sworn they'll call off the fight first, but they must have forgotten the Bowl is specified in the contract. . . . Babe Ruth is pulverizing the ball so hard in batting practice, they may put him on the active roster as a pinch hitter.

Insiders say the Reds planked down $60,000 (not $50,000) plus Spud Davis and Hollingsworth for Bucky Walters. . . . And that the Giants had to part with $40,000 for Bob Seeds instead of the 25 grand first reported. . . . We know a couple of American League leaders who are kicking themselves for not straining a pernt and giving the Browns what they wanted for Buck Newsom. . . . We still believe Henry Armstrong will attend to Lou Ambers, but Lou is going to give the negro the toughest fight he has had yet. . . . Richmond, Va., goes for night softball in a big way. . . . Seven fields are equipped with flood lights.

Dean Stanley's Address

Dean Stanley's address to the graduates was as follows:

Reverend Fathers, Reverend Sisters, Ladies and Gentlemen, Members of the Graduating Class: "Educatio Christiana Patriae Salus." The translation of which is "Christian Education will be the salvation of the fatherland." This inscription I would like to see placed over the portals of our own school, because we feel in that it is the inscription denoting what is necessary to keep up this wonderful country that our forefathers left us. You know, ladies and gentlemen, that most of the men who founded this beloved country of ours had come from Europe to avoid and escape persecution. They came here and after many years banded themselves together to form the country that had come down through the ages as the type of place wherein mankind would wish to live.

In formulating the future laws they took the best that was in the countries of the old, going back to Roman and Continental civilizations. From these they took the thought—Christian and Catholic—Catholic to the core in the principles that they enunciated, and formed the doctrines of the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution of the United States. If this government of ours which we love is to endure, it needs Christian education. If we wish to destroy our great government, the easiest way is to wipe out Christian education. What is it that constitutes good government? Men of sound judgment will tell you three things are necessary. These three, in their proper relation are all sufficient—authority, liberty and religion. Or to put it in another way, the state, the individual and the church. All well thinking men feel that these three elements go to make up a happy land—the state, the individual, religion.

The individual has rights that God gave him, which the state has no authority to infringe on. These are inallenable and can never be forfeited unless through one's own misconduct. The state has rights which the collected individuals or the sum total of the population gives it, and these the individual has to respect. Side by side with the individual stands God or the church, having its own right, standing supreme over both the individual and the state is God. God created man, man created the state.

We must always remember that the state was created by man, and not man by the state. Without God's guidance the state will infringe on the individual, and the individual will infringe on the state. If the state infringes on the individual, it destroys his liberty and thus it takes unto itself the right that God gave to man. On the opposite side, the individual through selfishness is inclined to throw off the authority of the state, and proclaim for himself the authority which belongs to the state. To defeat both these tendencies, to prevent despotism on the part of the state and anarchy on the part of the individual, it is necessary that both the state and the individual realize that all power comes from God.

Now in order that the state should be successful, the men who make its government or its laws, its legislatures, and its congresses, must be guided by the thought that the liberty and inalienable rights of man must be secured. Therefore, in the forming of their laws, these laws must conform to a model that will be pleasing both to the individual and to God. Now an individual has his inalienable rights from the very beginning, and the state has not the right to deprive him of them. Or to put it thus—if the state oversteps its powers, then we have a condition of despotism. If the individual gains so much power that he wishes to have his fellow members or neighbors under his control, we have a condition of anarchy or dictatorship.

One should work with the other. One should work in communion and conformity with the other's wishes. Where we have the state taking over the rights of the individuals, then we have a government wherein a man lives in fear and trepidation. He can not give vent to the voice of his conscience. He is deprived of his liberty, and by liberty I do not mean license. Now when man forgets himself and becomes a dictator. So we can readily see how both can fall into error, if they are not guided by a third, and that is religion, that they must give an account of their stewardship. In order to have happiness on the face of the earth, the state and the individual must call upon God and be guided by God.

We remember and know that God comes first and we come afterwards. We remember and know that in the foundation of our country, the foundation is Christian, and the country is still called a Christian country. Our plan is that it will always be progressive and a happy land wherein man wishes to live. To attain this end we have two types or theories of how to be happy—taking God into both. One theory will say religion should be taught in the home and in the church. The other theory will say religion should be taught in the school. Now if we Catholics combine the two doctrines and say that it should be taught not only in the home and in the church, but also to be taught in the school, because we have in mind the commission our Divine Lord gave to His apostles, "go forth and teach all nations, whatsoever I have commanded you." That commission was to teach the things that He had commanded, and the church understands that in dealing with education, the individual must be taken early in life. If we want a tree to grow up straight, we have to guide it in its early days. If we should allow it to grow up anyway, in later years when we would wish to have the tree straight, it is too late. We can not bend it to the position we would like to have it.

The church teaches according to the mind of her founder, Jesus Christ, and tells her sons and daughters that religion must be inculcated into the minds and hearts of the little ones in school, when their minds are plastic. We feel that the mother and father can not spare the time, and if they could they are not always capable to develop a child, and therefore they call in educators who have consecrated themselves to God, and gave up their lives for others. This, my dear boys and girls, has been your happiness, to have the Sisters of Charity, women who left their homes in order to help you.

As you came on the platform today, their hearts are exalted. These sisters are the ones who have helped your parents to bring you thus far. Now you are going out, and don't think for a moment that the education of a lifetime is completed. It is a fool of a man or woman who closes his books and says "I have nothing to learn." The most brilliant men and professors that I have known during my life, were students to their dying day. We are sending you off hoping that you will adhere to the doctrines these Sisters have taught you. Do not lose the pearl of great price. We appeal to you to keep up your religion and your education. You might say as the world is saying—"now we can drop our religion—our school days are over." If you do this, all would be in vain. Forgetting religion or leaving out religion, you might develop keen minds and cheat your fellowman, but keep God in your education and keep God always before you. You have an immortal soul, and that soul will survive for all eternity, either in Heaven or in Hell—that you are accountable to an all-knowing God, and your every thought, word and deed. Keeping this in mind you are doing the right thing. There was never in the history of the world, more education than there is today, but an education without God means an education wherein one is trained to be shrewd, clever and prey upon his fellowman. All we have to do is read the daily papers and most of the current events. If you want to be successful, never forget that Almighty God gave us ten commandments and these commandments are to be kept and put in operation.

My dear boys and girls, you are going forth; you are going to have a battle because what you possess may be taken from you. You must do your share for Catholic action. Keep your education to your dying day. I do not know what your individual vocations in life may be, but everyone of you has his or her own proper vocation to follow. Keep that thought always before you. You remember as well as I remember, we are created with immortal souls. We came into the world—we will go out of the world, but the end of the world is not the end of all things for us. We can make this place a very happy one to live in, when we realize that this world is not the be-all and the end-all of living, but only the preparation for a life, and a greater life to come. You should be careful, boys and girls.

This is your day. Beautiful as you are today, I hope your beauty always remains. Remember you are sons and daughters of St. Mary's. I am going to ask you to come back from time to time to see your preceptors, the Sisters. During my time here many have gone before you and have not returned. Oh! base ingratitude! They thought it was just something to be taken according to years—their Christian education. They took it as just something and seemed to forget. Come back and tell the Sisters, tell the Priests how you are doing. Keep in communication with the Societies of the church. Do not be only a Sunday Catholic, but be an interested Catholic. Be interested not only in the parish, but in everything the church stands for. Be interested in our beloved country and all that the American flag stands for.

We are here, part of the great Catholic church with the Holy Father at Rome. The doctrines of your faith are running through your blood. They have been fought for, and kept at a great price by your parents and preceptors. Guard them. Love your church. Love your country. Never think that you can throw aspersions at one of the other. With a virile, strong Catholic citizen, what a loving place this country would be to live in. The enemies today, the ones doing great havoc in this world, taking human life as if it were nothing, destroying the civilization that has been handed to us as chaotic, would be able to carry out their destructive ideas if it were not for the Catholic church. The church they know is their stumbling block, and we know that if this country is to remain as our forefathers left it, and if our civilization is to continue, we need the Catholic church. It is not up to the priests and sisters—it is up to you to carry on and give to others by your teaching and by your example. Many outside would thank God if they only had the chance you had. Many do not know because they do not have the opportunity. You had it.

I wish you were all able to go to a Catholic high school from our own school—to keep up religion in your studies. We are depending upon you for the education that your have received to keep the splendid banner ever flying in the breeze—the banners of your faith and your country.

God bless you and spare you, that you will prosper and be happy in the years to come.
